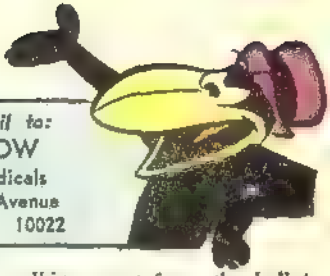
New York, N.Y. 10022



Letters, postcards, and still more letters! They've been coming in by the sackful ever since we announced that we were seeking a new name for Stanley's pal Mathatoothits because he couldn't pronounce Massachusetts. In the next issue, we'll publish the final choice, so if you want to get your suggestion in, note the address above.

By and large, the names have been funny, original, ingenious, and in a few cases, confusing. Honors for a unique monicker go to Ronald J. Ellis of Hialeah, Fla., who offered SBITTMF ("Something Born in Test Tube Marked Failure") or Ornithischian ("meaning any group of dinosaurs that lived during the Jurassic and Cretaceous period of the Mesozoic era.") Ronald's third idea—whew!—was simply Thpot!

At this writing, Hairy seems to be the favorite with Red running a close second, and Shaggy in third place. But we never know what this, the final call, will bring.

Among the oddball names fans dreamed up are Egghead, Elvis, Goofy, Sparky, Herman, Tiny, King, Simon, Milton, Red Fang, Igor, Oscar, Goulash, Hungry, Suzy S., Albert, Dory, Arthur, Fink, Rover, Big Stuff, Rufus, Zinnia, Champagne, Longfellow, Kingsley, Tusker, Tusky, Diamond Eyes, Joseph, Bam-Bam, Uncle Roy, Dogithan, Clyde, Booster, Pinky, Teresa, Mickey, Curley, Penny, Muffin, Terry, Marvin, Filmore, Toothy, Rocky, Pluto, Tony, Woolly Bully, Henri, Peewee, Big Boy, Smiley, Cooky, China, Monty, Fang, Beauregard, Alexander, Herkimer, Custard, Oliver, Ping Pong, and Terrible Lizard.

As for the others, we don't know whether you say 'em, spell 'em, or sneeze 'em—Potonka, Bogoge, Maok, Arough, Gwump, Therog, and Pchew!

At any rate, this is your last chance, so let's hear from you!

THE SNOW

The house was warm,
The fire was glowing,
Outside it was cold,
For it was snowing.
Snowflakes looked like crystals of glass,
As they fell on the frozen grass.
It looked like winter wonderland,
But what made them melt when they hit my hand?

Sherri Thornton, Macon, Ga.

Dear Editor: one of the kids in our class isn't too bright, but I didn't know how thick-headed he was until last term when we voted for school officers. I happened to spot him walking away from the ballot box, so I asked him how he voted for one of our classmates who was running for president.

"I don't like him very much," he said, "so I voted against him. Yeah, I put an X against his name as big as an elephant!"

Ben Bowker, San Diego.

* * *

Dear Editor: "Who started the 40-hour week?" I asked one of my pupils in our Social Studies class.

"I'm not sure, but I think it was Robinson Crusoe," replied one bright boy, "because he had all his work done by Friday!"

Miss Mary Anne Talbott, Detroit.

* * *

Dear Editor: It was Visitors' Day at our camp recently, and a little girl was leading her parents around on a tour of the grounds. "What a tumbledown shack!" said her mother. "What keeps it together?"

"I guess," said her helpful daughter, "the termites are holding hands!"

Josephine Van Vooren, Lincoln, Nebr.

Dear Editor: This is no reflection on Stanley's lisp, but not long ago, a neighborhood apparel shop that advertised "Kwality Klothes for Kute Kiddies" was struck by its workers for higher wages. By way of showing their fine appreciation of the sensibilities of their little customers, their picket signs read:

"We're out on thtrike!"

H. L. Mayo, New York City.

* * *

MARY: Am I glad I'm back from my vacation! It rained all the time!

JOE: Come on, it couldn't have been that bad. That's a nice tan you have.

MARY: That's not a tan! It's rust!

Hortense Robinson, Pittsburgh.

Dear Editor: On a recent overnight hike which I supervised, one of the boys began to complain about a toothache until I had no choice but to stop at a dentist's office in a nearby town.

"Guess I'll have to pull it, sonny," said the dentist after examining the bothersome molar. "Now you relax while I give you a local anesthetic."

"Gee, can't you get this over with fast," said the little patient, "by giving me an express?"

Bill Gallagher, Los Angeles.
